The outstanding matters are where the suspect has fled the jurisdiction or police are unable to locate or develop a suspect based upon investigative resource currently available. Most of the cases have suspects who are considered wanted and have fled to unknown locations and arrest warrants are valid to be executed upon their whereabouts becoming known. He reported that all the current investigations have been reported to the Investigative Judge and reviewed. He further advised this occurs daily, usually, within twenty four hours after arrest but never longer than several days. He also advised the most serious criminal matters for investigation are assigned to the Crime Combat Police Unit and that the Irbil Crime Lab responds to collect and preserve physical evidence as required by his investigators and when they assist the Crime Combat Police with Investigations. He advised they would welcome further investigative training to enhance the abilities of his staff. They have the ability to obtain prints from detainees and suspects arrested but have no evidence collection or latent print kits and must rely on the Irbil Crime Lab for investigative support for Crime Scene Evidence Collection and Preservation.

(NO FFID) Irbil Training Center: PTT began gathering information on a weapons maintenance class for the Glock and the AK-47 rifle. The curriculum was decided upon and classes will begin as soon. PTT will begin the classes close to the City of Irbil and branch out to the Soran Directorate in the coming weeks.

(MI0275) Irbil Provincial JCC: The PTT met with command staff at the PJCC and discussed several issues dealing with the emergency response plan for the region. The main focus today was the various reporting responsibilities of the staff within the operations room. When an incident occurs, the command staff needs to decide and document who is to be called to deal with the various scenarios, as an emergency management coordinator. This is a very difficult issue for the staff here to resolve because nobody within the command staff wants to allow another staff member to take charge of an incident, even if they would have no knowledge about how to deal with the issue.

The PTT stressed the importance of making these type decisions up front and having documentation available to instruct those who are working at the time on who to call. The PTT was also advised that there will not be a replacement for the officer recently transferred back to the Irbil Police. The PJCC advised that the Governor advised the Irbil Police not to replace him because it was not needed. The PTT asked the commanders to meet with the Governor and ask him officially to replace the officer, and the command staff advised that they felt it would not be proper to do so. The commanders also talked about the new airport in Irbil and that it could potentially become a major threat for terrorism.

(NO FFID) Dahuk Provincial Narcotics: The unit commander advised they have no significant ongoing cases at the time. He recently returned from an A Sa Ish organizational meeting during which the A Sa Ish from Irbil are combining with the Sulaymaniyah A Sa Ish. The LTC advised that the narcotics units were hoping to be given their own department with their own combined unit director but instead the KMOI and A Sa Ish have decided the narcotics investigators for the provinces will fall under the command of the A Sa Ish General. The LTC feels this arrangement will further aggravate the already substantial problem of a lack of support for the narcotics investigators. The PTT also discussed and reviewed the initial results from a series of questions the PTT put together for the narcotics officers to ask known cooperative drug users regarding drug use within the Dahuk Province. This was done primarily as a training tool to educate the investigators, but also provided direction to the unit as problems were noted in the responses provided.

Although not many interviews have been compiled yet some obvious trends were already apparent. The primary drug abused is opium with heroin being the second most abused. Finding a source of supply for either drug is not considered difficult. Based on data collected so far the drug users within the area are not overly concerned with being caught by law enforcement while using and transporting their drugs.

(NO FFID) Dahuk A Sa Ish Checkpoint Police: The PTT visited the Etite, Baadre and Rovia checkpoints in order to drop off medical kits consisting of bandages and bandaging supplies that had been gathered and put together by the PTT for the area permanent vehicle checkpoints. These checkpoints need a minimum of at least one chase vehicle to be kept available at each checkpoint. They currently use personal vehicles to pursue anyone failing to stop. They do not have sufficient pistols or PKC machine guns available. They need flashlights for night time use and search mirrors to help expedite vehicle searches.
