The restructuring of the stations computers was discussed. Currently the station has three computers. The computers are not being utilized to the complete potential. An agreement was made to move one computer to investigations. The other computer may soon be used for basic reporting services.

Attempts are being made to place an initial reporting area at the entrance to the station. This reporting area would take the initial reports which would either be handled by patrol IP or forwarded to investigation. The station requests more computers.

Eleven inmates were being detained.

Irbil

(No FFID#) Irbil Security Police-Ankawa: PTT met with Captain [redacted] (b)(6), (b)(7)c the Station Commander. This station has a compliment of one (1) officer and seventeen (17) IP. The station has one (1) vehicle for duty purposes. IP must use their own vehicles for conducting investigations and surveillances. Captain [redacted] is the only member with an issued Glock 19 Pistol. The IP carry privately owned weapons, mostly 9mm Toreks in very poor condition. The AK-47 rifles that were available were in very poor condition with cracked handguards, missing stocks and damaged front sights. Ammunition is scarce. Each AK-47 had one (1) loaded magazine with twenty rounds.

Captain [redacted] stated that the IP have had no in-service training and very basic entry level training. No formal firearms training has been conducted and none of his IP have had any investigative training. Captain [redacted] is a very progressive officer that believes that the use of computers is essential to the daily functioning of his station. The station has one (1) computer and other than Captain [redacted], none of the IP have any experience with computers or use of the Internet.

[redacted] is requesting any available training for his station that CPATT may provide as well as weapons and equipment. The PTT advised Captain [redacted] that the PTT will continue to report the immediate logistical needs of the region to CPATT.

Re-supply of Computers, weapons, ammunition and equipment is requested.

(MI0007) Baharka Patrol Station: PTT met with station commander and discussed various training topics and asked for input of the station commander on what he would like to see his personnel trained in, and what was most important to his personnel as far as training. Station commander asked that more concentration be placed on the firing range and weapons handling, and also expressed great interest in community policing procedures. PTT advised the commander that PTT would schedule his personnel when PTT were able to secure the firing range and could allot the time for them.

PTT also inspected the station record keeping processes and found them to be very adequate for the system they have in place. PTT inspected the arms room and found above average record keeping process there and it was very well organized.

This station and it's sub-station are in very bad need of a generator and a copy machine in order to more fully do their jobs. Another patrol vehicle should also be considered for this station or given to it's sub-station. The station has 26 personnel and another 10 assigned to the sub-station, and currently has one vehicle to serve both places.

(MI0936) Irbil Security Police Provincial HQ: The PTT met with BG [redacted] and discussed the possibilty of conducting a critical incident response drill for the City of Irbil. The PTT asked if there were plans in place for a mass disaster scenario along the lines of a 9-11 incident. Since the Irbil Security Police are responsible for the internal security of the City, as well the entire province, it is prudent to have a such a plan in place for coordination between the different security and emergency agencies.

The plan would call for a city-wide lockdown, response to the incident, casualty evacuation and coordination with Emergency Medical and Fire personnel and subduing and preventing any follow up insurgent activity. This type of drill would be an excellent test of the City's command, control and communication systems. BG [redacted] stated that he agreed with the idea and would discuss the matter with the station commander.

Re-supply of weapons, ammunition, and vehicles is requested.

(MI0070) Shorsh/Degala: PTT met with station staff and discussed personnel and equipment issues as well as problems getting their supply needs met. The biggest issues brought up during the discussion were their limited ability to perform their duties without the proper equipment. Personnel at this station feel they are so far out in the District that they are often forgotten when it comes to patrol vehicles and training as well. PTT was asked if it would be a possibility to get an additional patrol vehicle. PTT advised that this is a recurring question throughout the region and with the limited supply of vehicles in country that it would be some time before they would be able to get a vehicle, even if the command staff approved it. PTT explained that the training issue was being addressed and that in the near future training should be available at their station in a limited capacity.

(MI0022) Hawler East District Police HQ: On 30 Sep 2006 the PTT conducted a station visit at the aforementioned location. The PTT met with the station commander and discussed the operational readiness of his station.

This station has a compliment of thirty-one (31) officers, two-hundred- eighty-five (285) IP and is the District HQ for nine (9) local Police Stations.

The station commander stated that while the security situation in the Irbil is secure, there is still a need for equipment and training from CPATT. The commander stated that CPATT training is the only training available to the Police in this region. He stated that he has heard favorable reports about the quality of the training and stated that is what the Police require. The majority of the training from TIPS has not been beneficial for the Police in that it is very basic and is geared more toward newer IP than experienced IP. The firearms training was adequate because, with the exception of a small percentage of IP, the remainder never receive firearms training. There is no annual requalification and no in-service training of any kind. All ammunition must be conserved for duty use and there is never any ammunition allocated for training. The commander stated that another problem with the TIPS being conducted in Sulaymaniyah is that it creates a manpower shortage in Irbil. If the majority of the TIPS training was conducted in Irbi, IP would still be available to work the evening patrol shift.

The PTT stated that there is training that can be conducted. The commander stated that his men need new weapons and updated firearms training. He stated that this is what is essential to maintaining the security situation in Irbil and that vehicles and radios are also in short supply.

The PTT advised the station commander that his requests will be noted in the PTT's reports to CPATT. Re-supply of weapons, ammunition, and vehicles is requested.

(MI0001) Irbil Provincial Police HQ: PTT met to coordinate the team training and station visit schedule. IPLO team also traveled through Irbil City in search of logistical supplies for the IPLO living quarters.

(MI0001) Irbil Provincial Police HQ: PTT contacted the IP training officer, 1LT [redacted] at PHQ. [redacted] was advised that there was a mistake in the Irbil TIPS training schedule. The next Irbil TIPS class was set to begin October 8, 2006, but the course should begin October 1, 2006. [redacted] advised that he had made no arrangement to provide students to the October 1st class and that it would be very difficult to have IP work schedules changed to meet the needs of 110 students. PTT expressed the urgency of the request to provide as many students that could be arranged. Lt [redacted] advised that he would begin contacting District Station Commanders and try to arrange for as many IP as possible to attend the TIPS class.

The incident occurred near the market in Baghdadi, when IPs were on a foot patrol with coalition forces. Upon arrival to the Baghdadi District Station, detainees were observed in the jail cell, which were identified as suspicious persons, possibly related to the incident involving the IED attack. Goggles, handheld radios, desk lamps, binoculars and jackets were issued to the Baghdadi District Station. PTT members gave IP's training on disassemble and maintenance to Glock pistols. (RA0032) Karmah Patrol Police Station: The station is currently below its authorized staffing levels. We are expect new recruits from academy upon their graduation in October. Sixteen (16) IP were each issued one (1) AK-47 for use both at the station and for home security. A letter and list of affected IP's is being forwarded to Fallujah to facilitate the updating of Id's. The generator went down due to a throttle linkage problem. It was temporarily repaired with 540-cord and duct tape. Training records continued to be kept by the IP and they have been reasonably diligent in keeping them up to date. Training was limited due to minimal staffing levels. There has been a fuel situation the last several weeks as the EFIC has stopped issuing fuel as they transition to the new facilities. The problem is intermittent at present and Col. [redacted] has on occasion purchased fuel from outside sources from his own pocket. In the meantime, patrols are at minimal frequencies due in part to fuel and in part to minimal staffing.

Wasit Province [redacted]

(b)(3), (b)(6)

The PTT team made contact with Provincial Headquarters in reference to what appeared to be a shooting incident that occurred between the second and third river bridge just east of the main gate of Camp Delta. According to Lt. [redacted] he is not sure what the gunfire was about but it did not involve any Iraqi Police. PTT learned that the Provincial Chief of Wasit Province had brokered a deal with the local militia. The deal between the militia and the Chief was that if the militia would not fire any rockets or mortars into Camp Delta he would not interfere with their business. So, it appears at this time that the week and half of no rocket attacks on Camp Delta was not due to an arrest made but it was some kind of deal made between the Provincial Chief and the militia located in Al Kut. This would also explain why no one at Provincial Headquarters knew what the gunfire was about other than it did not involve the Iraqi Police. This matter is currently being checked into by PTT. It was also reported by the PTT team that there were no major incidents in Al Kut this date. The situation at Suwayrah area is still the same, it is currently controlled by the insurgents and the militia and the situation is very volatile.
