Bob,

Here is what I have so far:

To your question: Were there any truth to what was being said by (b)(3), (b)(6)?

Answer: An investigation of the allegations were conducted by the command and found to be false. In fact, members of (b)(3), (b)(6) platoon and company were all interviewed and no one could substantiate his claims.

As to what will happen to him?

Answer: As there is no evidence of criminal conduct, he is subject to Administrative punishment as determined by his chain of command. Under the various rules and regulations, administrative actions are not releasable to the public by the military on what does or does not happen.

All we've seen thus far is (b)(6), (b)(3) claim, and nothing from the Army PAO system yet.
